A NAME CHANGER

Mound to be known as Poundland Hill where people can watch races for free

REPORTER

CRAIG RICHARD

craig.richard@
london.newsquest.co.uk

THE famous Hill at Epsom Downs Racecourse is to be re-named Poundland Hill after a new sponsorship deal was struck with the high street retailer.

Families and racing fans will be able to enjoy the world famous Epsom Derby for free Poundland Hill, the Jockey Club announced this week.

As part of Poundland's deal, the retailer is expected to take part in prize giveaways and host family-friendly attractions on the race days.

Poundland trading director Barry Williams, said he was thrilled to be involved in this year's Derby in support of Investec's partnership with Epsom and its parent company Steinhoff International.

He added: "All of Britain loves the Derby and as the people's store, we're looking forward to helping make the people's hill at Epsom one of the best ways for the family to experience The Derby at Epsom."

The news comes just a few days after Epsom Downs announced ambitious plans for its family enclosure at The Hill for the Derby Festival, giving it twice the amount of family space as in previous years.

The new ticketed enclosure will feature a family zone with children's entertainment, a garden party area with food stalls and giant garden games and roaming musicians.

It will also include fairground rides and a big top.

Coinciding with the Poundland deal, bank and asset manager Investec announced it was extending its sponsorship at the world-famous racecourse for an extra five years, taking the sponsorship through until 2026.

Phil White, regional director of the Jockey Club's London region, said: "Investec have been a fantastic partner of the Investec Derby and supporter of British racing."

"We are delighted to have them on board for another ten years."

"The Investec team show their passion and dedication for this special event in their activation at every level of the Investec Derby Festival." Malcolm Fried, Global Head of Marketing at Investec added: "We are proud to have extended our sponsorship of the Investec Derby Festival, an event that shares our values of energy, passion and outstanding talent."

"The Investec Derby has given back so much to our brand over the years, and we are committed to ensuring it remains the greatest flat race in the world."

But the racecourse was forced to defend the decision after pundits suggested the rebranding was tasteless and played into class stereotypes. The Hill is traditionally free entry, while the Queen's Stand is traditionally paid for.

An Epsom spokesman told the Epsom Guardian the name change "made sense" as South African Markus Jooste, owner of the Steinhoff International Group which owns the Poundland brand, is a racecourse owner with a growing interest in British racing.

The spokesman added: "I don't see how it is demeaning in any way. They're a very respectable High Street brand." Racing fans and pundits had reacted scathingly to the Poundland Hill announcement on social media.

Racing to Profit blogger Josh Wright wrote: "Poundland Hill?? Good god."

"Will it include their awful branding as well?"

"Will feel like a bunch of posh t*s laughing at the poor. Great."

And Racing Post journalist Tom Kerr wrote: "Just imagine the meeting where a bunch of posh dudes decided it was a good idea to call the free entry bit of Epsom the 'Poundland Hill'."

The Epsom Derby Festival kicks off with Ladies' Day on Friday, June 2, before the main Derby race on Saturday, June 3.

EPSOM AND SURROUNDING AREAS

GUIDE Dogs is one of the charities The Ashley Centre has pledged to support during 2017 and their fundraising has got off to a flying start already with £2,554.02 after only two days fundraising in the Centre.

Thanks to generous Epsom shoppers Guide Dogs were delighted with the amount raised by donations and purchases from their stall in the Centre. The Ashley Centre has set a target of £5,000 to sponsor and name a new puppy for Guide Dogs. Visitors can see the fundraising progress towards this goal on the "boneometer" situated at the Ashley Avenue entrance to the Centre.

RESIDENTS and staff at Sunrise of Banstead care home celebrated VE Day in style on 8th May, hosting a charity tea party packed with great entertainment and delicious food.

The event was held to honour Victory in Europe Day, which marked the anniversary of Germany's surrender during the Second World War.

Guests listened to Winston Churchill's famous VE Day speech from 8th May 1945, and were joined by the leader of the local Air Cadets and one of the community's carers who is a Combat Medic for the Army Reserves.

There are a number of veterans among the community's residents, and guests were visibly moved when one former soldier described his memories of VE Day, and the fact that no shots had been fired for three days by that time.

A raffle raised £63.52 for the Help for Heroes charity, which provides support and facilities for British servicemen and women who have been injured in the line of duty.

Mayor's farewell

A UKULELE-strumming former rugby union referee who once tackled a streaker at Twickenham is handed over the mayoral chains of Epsom and Ewell after raising an estimated £20,000 for a leading cancer charity.

Councillor George Crawford believes he attended more than 200 events in his year as mayor of Epsom and Ewell.

But it is seeing the charity of the people of Epsom and Ewell first-hand that will form the lasting memory of his time as mayor, Cllr Crawford told the Epsom Guardian.

"It gave me an insight into the borough itself and all the people doing good work here."

Cllr Crawford and his partner Jackie Hennings also organised more than 15 events throughout the year for Macmillan Cancer Support.

Cllr Crawford is known within the borough for busking for charity, and more widely for tackling a streaker while refereeing the semi-final of the Middlesex Sevens at Twickenham in 1985.

He is replaced as mayor by Woodcote ward councillor Liz Frost.

On-demand food delivery service Deliveroo has launched in Epsom

CRAIG RICHARD

DELIVEROO, the on-demand food delivery service, launched in Epsom on Wednesday.

More than 15 restaurants including Blacks Burgers, Pizza Express, El Patio, ASK Italian, Bamboo Basket, The Green Life and Chicken & Banter have signed up to the service so far.

The company aims to create work for more than 50 riders in Epsom during its first year of operation in the borough, a spokesman stated.

Customers can order food through the app between midday and 11pm from more than 20,000 restaurants nationwide.

Caroline Hazlehurst, General Manager at Deliveroo, said: "We're extremely excited to be launching in Epsom and we're looking forward to bringing some of the town's delicious dishes straight from the hands of local chefs to customers' doors.

"Our new riders in Epsom are now kitted out in their new hyper-reflective kit and locals can order from the fantastic variety of restaurants in Epsom, whatever they want, whenever they want, all from the comfort of their own home, office desk or wherever else hunger strikes.

"We already have a number of great partners across the town and we are excited to expand and widen the variety of restaurants on offer to our customers in Epsom over the course of the next year."

Earlier this month, Deliveroo bowed to government pressure and announced a new agreement with riders, removing a clause stipulating they cannot take claims to an employment tribunal.

MPs on the Commons' work and pensions select committee had demanded changes to the agreement, and unions had been campaigning for better employment rights in the gig economy prior to the announcement.

Elderly cat found mutilated may be victim of M25 killer

AN elderly cat found killed and mutilated in an Epsom garden may have been the latest victim of the Croydon Cat Killer, an animal welfare group believes.

South Norwood Animal Rescue and Liberty (SNARL) believe one person - sometimes known as the UK Cat Killer or the M25 Animal

Killer - is behind the murder and mutilation of more than 200 animals in recent years.

And they believe the latest victim is Molly, whose body was found on Wednesday, May 10.

On a post on SNARL's Facebook page, said: "Molly was brought home to live with her family when she was four weeks old.

"She grew up with the children and in the later part of her life befriended the two dogs who joined the family. Always independent, as she got older, she tended to stay indoors more and spent her days close to her home, relaxing and enjoying being with her loved ones."

They added: "Her injuries were a match for those seen on victims of the UK animal killer."

"May she rest in peace and may her family be comforted by their memories of her and the love they shared."

Tony Jenkins and Boudica Rising formed the group, which rescues and rehabili-tates poorly treated, abused and ill cats and other animals, in 2014.

The Metropolitan Police launched an investigation, Operation Tahake, into the slayings, and PETA and Out-paced have offered a £10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

Italian market returns with delicious treats

A popular Italian market returns to an historic market town, bringing with it a mouth-watering range of cheeses, cured meats, pasta and much more.

Italia in Piazza comes to Leatherhead High Street from 9am tomorrow, Friday May 19, and residents can expect delicacies like Puglia olive oil containing hand-picked olives, selected and harvested using traditional methods, and delectable torrone - a soft nougat selected from a well-respected family-run business in the Lombardy region.

Nick Gray, deputy chief executive at Mole Valley District Council, said the market coincided with work starting on a ten-year £200million scheme to renovate the town.

"An important component of the Transform Leatherhead masterplan is to promote more town centre events," he explained.

The Italian Market in Leatherhead High Street in February 2016

"Therefore, we are looking forward to welcoming Italia in Piazza to Leatherhead and we would urge you all to come along."

Mr Gray added: "Once you have explored the huge array of delicious food on offer - and this will take some time - don't forget to explore the town's range of shops or enjoy lunch in one of its many cafés or restaurants."

Nutrition and exercise can help students to sharpen memory, improve concentration and boost confidence

Fitness expert's tips for exam season

WITH exam season in full swing, a personal trainer has offered students his top tips to combat revision stress and get through their GCSEs, ace their A-Levels and unwind while preparing for their university exams.

George D Choy said: "The right nutrition and exercise plans can energise your mind and body to sustain you through the long revision hours – sharpen your memory, improve concentration and boost confidence."

However, the wrong dietary choices can potentially put you at a disadvantage.

George added: "Food and drink can have a huge effect on your body and mind, choose the wrong meals and you can become sluggish and tired."

"But if you give your brain the right nutrients, you will be able to think quicker, have a better memory, be better co-ordinated and have improved concentration."

George shared his top five tips to improve memory, concentration, and reduce exam stress—these are also useful for working parents.

Get eight to nine hours of natural sleep

Cramming a week's worth of revision into one night is never a good idea.

Exam season is in full swing for those studying GCSEs, A-Levels and at university Picture: Gareth Fuller/PA Wire

- Staying up late can reduce response times and accuracy – equivalent to being drunk on alcohol – which is not optimum for your exams.
- Spend time gently winding down after studying, to get some good quality sleep, George advises.
- Avoid caffeine six hours before your usual bedtime
- Drinking caffeinated coffee, or energy drinks can make you feel more alert for a short time.

But consuming caffeine six hours before bedtime will disrupt your sleep—both taking longer to fall asleep, and potentially cutting your sleep short by an hour or more.

Exercise

Exercise can boost energy levels, clear the mind and relieve stress.

You don't even have to join a gym – there are a number of great bodyweight exercises you can do, such as squats, lunges, glute bridges and push-ups.

Avoid snacking on sugary foods

A lot of students will make this mistake because they feel they need the energy to concentrate, but these quick fixes are just short cuts to failure.

A study by the University of Southern California found that excess sugar consumption led to memory problems, and brain inflammation.

Improve your optimism by being grateful

In a ten-week study conducted on undergraduate university students, those participants who listed five things in their life that they were grateful or thankful for felt better about their lives as a whole, and were more optimistic about their expectations for the upcoming week.

Good luck.

Going quackers on river

Thousands of pounds were raised for charity as hundreds of painted plastic ducks raced down the Hogsmill last weekend.

Families lined the banks of the river and enjoyed picnics and face-painting as Ewell Court Residents' Association (ECRA) held its eighth annual duck race on Saturday, May 6.

Despite low river levels after a dry April, hundreds of ducks managed to complete the course.

The RA sold 300 ducks on race day, and more than 200 'corporate ducks' to local businesses before the event, ECRA chair Kerrie Baker told the Epsom Guardian.

And with donations from businesses from around Epsom and Ewell, about £2,000 was raised for Casey children's ward at Epsom Hospital.

Donations will also be made to 1st Ewell Scouts and Epsom Girl Guides, while some of the proceeds will go towards funding next year's race.

Manager Dominic Toole discusses his work and gives us his Derby tips

Keeping things nice and stable as Derby fever nears

REPORTER

SIMON BULL

simon.bull@london.newsquest.co.uk

EPSOM Downs Racecourse will welcome tens of thousands of people for the two-day Investec Derby Festival on June 2 and 3. We have spoken to some of the team behind the scenes who make the event happen.

In the first in the series we hear from the stable manager Dominic Toole on keeping the stable area relaxed, choosing the right horse bedding and nervous stable staff.

How long have you worked at Epsom racecourse?

Three years, but I have worked in the racing industry in Epsom for the last 25 years.

What does your day entail?

I start at 8am. Most days in the summer I will be preparing the stables and yard ready for racing, including mucking out and bedding up the boxes, hedge cutting, cutting the grass and general maintenance. My day finishes at 5pm.

How does your role differ over the two days of the Derby Festival from your day-to-day job?

Epsom Downs racecourse stable manager Dominic Toole

Over the two days my job changes from being hands-on to more logistical, with having to make sure all horses running have a stable and the staff travelling with the horses have accommodation. I have to make sure everybody is happy.

What is your highlight of the Derby Festival?

Definitely when the stable staff start arriving and bringing their horses into the yard ready to race.

They have spent the last year or so getting the horses ready and by this point all the waiting is over and the nerves start kicking in. For the winners it's celebration time and for the rest it's onto hoping their horse wins in the next race.

Now the Derby Festival is around the corner how does this affect you?

I won't do anything different in the yard before race day as I try to keep a high standard all year round. It is the logistics that get more complicated with the Derby Festival, for example

I have to check if we have horses coming in from abroad and if so when they are arriving, how many staff are coming with the horse and even what bedding would they want the horse to have! Then there are last-minute checks just in case there's a problem we need to rectify quickly.

What is different about the Derby Festival compared to other meetings at Epsom Downs?

There are lots more people around the stable area and of course an amazing atmosphere with everyone talking about who's going to win. Having said that, it stays reasonably quiet down in the stables as the staff like to keep their horses as relaxed as possible.

And finally who will you be putting your money on in this year's Derby?

I'd have a small each-way bet on Best Of Days. He really impressed me when winning last year and if he doesn't run it will be an Aidan O'Brien horse.

In the Oaks I'd have an each-way bet on Horseplay, who won nicely at Newmarket last time. Visit epsomderby.co.uk

Uni's degree of success as it shoots up ranking

A UNIVERSITY with an Epsom campus has shot up in to the top 25 of all UK universities, a national newspaper's new ranking reveals.

The University for the Creative Arts (UCA), which has a campus in Ashley Road, was ranked 21st in the Guardian University Guide 2018 released this week.

Rising 18 places in the Guardian's overall ranking since last year, UCA was also named the country's top specialist university for creative industries – a ranking it also achieved in the Complete University Guide 2018, which was released last month.

Acting Vice-Chancellor Alan Cooke, said it was an "incredible achievement" and praised staff at the university.

He added: "We are incredibly proud that UCA has not only been identified as one of the top universities for a creative degree, but as one of the best places in the country to study the creative industries."

Professor Roni Brown, Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Academic

Development, added: "It is extremely exciting to see our university continually recognised as providing education of the highest quality, acknowledging the outstanding talent and commitment of our staff and students."

"We are delighted to see our courses ranked so highly in the subject listings, and our Architecture, Fashion & Textiles, and Film Production & Photography courses named in the top 10 in the Guide's subject listings."

Suspect with knife rode off

A THIEF threatened a shop owner with a knife before reportedly riding off on a moped with two bottles of vodka, worth an estimated £30.

The owner of the store in Stoneleigh Broadway was left "very shaken" but otherwise unharmed after the robbery on Friday, May 12.

The passenger of a three-wheeled moped came into the store at about 9.30pm, threatened the owner with a knife for the till keys, before leaving with the alcohol, Surrey Police stated.

The force believes the moped's driver rode away up Woodstone Avenue after the robbery.

The suspect is described as a white male, approximately five foot one inches tall to five foot three inches tall, between 17 and 18 years old, of medium build with brown eyes and possibly short brown hair. He was wearing a black helmet with a white design on the sides, a black top, blue trousers and white trainers. He was also wearing a rucksack.

To offer information, call Surrey Police on 101, quoting crime reference number 45170049297, or report online at surrey.police.uk/contact-us/report-online. To offer information call Crime-stoppers on 0800 555 111.

Volunteer put £411 into Lester Bowden account before it went into administration

Store rides to the rescue after girl left out of pocket

AN equestrian store has come to the aid of a charity volunteer who lost 18 months' worth of savings towards riding gear after a 119-year-old retailer went bust.

Rebecca Watkinson had hoped to buy a full set of riding gear from Lester Bowden, and had ploughed £411.50 raised through a weekly paper round into an account with the retailer based in Spread Eagle Walk, Epsom.

But her hopes were dashed when the company went into administration last month – leaving her and other creditors out of pocket – and again when the store's new owners said they would not help her.

Rebecca, who volunteers at a charity that looks after horses no longer able to race, was devastated, and her father Ian came to the Epsom Guardian to tell his daughter's story.

And after reading her story, Derby Arms Country Store in

Derby Arms Country Store in Epsom Downs provided Rebecca Watkinson with a body protector

Epsom Downs offered to provide her with a body protector to safeguard her against heavy falls and kicks when taking care of horses.

"She was ecstatic," Ian, a computer solutions architect from Ferriers Way, Tattenham Corner, said. They haven't asked for anything.

"It's nice to see a local business step up and help, and it's nice to get a happy ending."

A director at Stevenson's, the company which had taken over Lester Bowden, said it had no legal obligation to reimburse the Spread Eagle

Walk retailer's creditors, and to do so would see it "spiral into bigger debts".

John Stevenson added that the takeover had allowed schools to still be served by a local family business and 50 members of staff to keep their jobs.

OVERNIGHT 'FLY-TIPPING' has disgusted residents who woke up to find glass shards, wooden frames and other detritus littering their street. Residents took to social media to express concerns about the mess, while a video showed a car mounting the curb to avoid risking a puncture on broken glass. County council highways officers are clearing the bulk of the mess left in Rosedale Road before borough council officers clear the remainder, an Epsom and Ewell Borough Council spokesman advised.

AUSTRIAN GOLD ducats, Swarovski earrings, and gold necklaces and brooches have reportedly been stolen from a home in Tadworth. Surrey Police has asked residents whether anyone has tried to sell them any of the jewellery, after the alleged theft on the evening of Tuesday, May 2. Money and a laptop was also reportedly snatched from the house in Preston Lane. To offer information, call Surrey Police on 101, quoting crime reference number 45170045266. HISTORY LOVERS looking to find out what life was like for Epsom and Ewell residents during the Second World War will get their chance by heading down to Rosebury Park. Bourne Hall Museum's Echoes of the Past event on Saturday, May 20 will give visitors the opportunity to immerse themselves in the World War Two experience and get an idea of the day-to-day situation 1940s Britons faced. The event will be running from 10am. Tickets cost £5 for adults with children under 12 admitted for free.

People think they have to live with crooked teeth.
We put them straight in no time.

What's it like hiding away the real you? You know, the one that people used to love being around. Maybe it's been like this for so long you don't notice it anymore, but the truth is you never smile because you dread your crooked teeth being seen. Not because you're some kind of joyless oddity. Mayor's figures show there have been more youth victims of knife crime in the past 12 months, reports JOE DEMPSEY

Knife crime statistics for south London area

YOUNG victims of violent crime have risen to the highest levels in five years across south London boroughs.

Figures from the Mayor of London's gang crime and serious youth violence dashboard website show that there is an increasing trend in youth victims of knife crime in the past 12 months.

People under the age of 25 injured in knife crimes have continuously risen over the past year, with 453 young people injured in knife attacks this April.

Gang crimes in south London rose by almost 50 per cent in the space of one month, from February to March, primarily in the borough of Greenwich.

Croydon has the highest numbers of serious youth violence in the entirety of London, with 455 injured in April, and that number has been rising steadily in the past few months.

The Met Police is trying to tackle the problem with their Operation Sceptre. Last week it completed its 8th phase as police carried out over 1,000 weapon sweeps across London.

Lewisham

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 284 - April 2016: 222; Gang offences: April 2017: 37 - April 2016: 45; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 87 - April 2016: 70

Youth violence in on a serious rise in Lewisham. While the number of gang offences are going down (although it should be stressed that police don't always know when a crime is committed due to gang violence and investigations will be ongoing), it's clear that more young people in Lewisham are being hurt in these serious attacks.

Greenwich

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 254 - April 2016: 211; Gang offences: April 2017: 206 - April 2016: 85; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 72 - April 2016: 65

Greenwich has possibly the grimmest figures of every borough. Most noticeably they are the main reason why gang violence in south London has gone up, increasing by over 100 per cent in the space of a year. Gang numbers are actually down for London as a whole but for the people of Greenwich, this paints a grim picture.

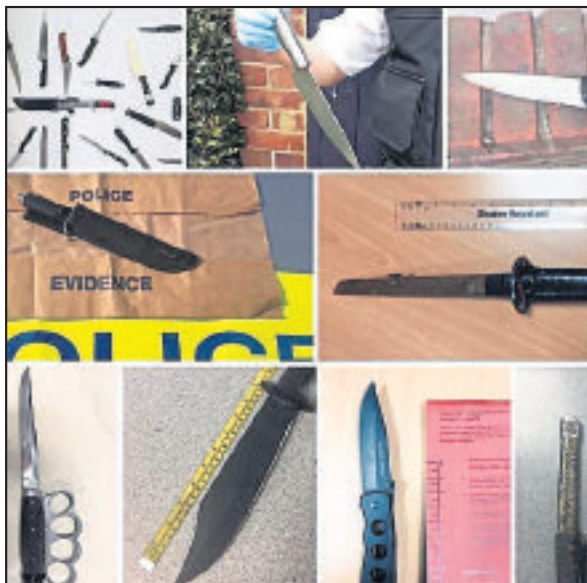

Bexley

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 384 - April 2016: 222; Gang offences not available (n/a); Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 18 - April 2016: 15

While there are no figures available for the number of gang-related attacks in the borough (as there are for a few of the other boroughs), it's safe to say that an increasing number of young people are being injured in serious attacks. It's not even in knife attacks, as those numbers are comparatively low compared to other boroughs.

Bromley

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 252 - April 2016: 218; Gang offences: April 2017: 16 - April 2016: 27; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 41 - April 2016: 23

Police have carried out several operations to get knives off streets

lence: April 2017: 252 - April 2016: 218; Gang offences: April 2017: 16 - April 2016: 27; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 41 - April 2016: 23

Bromley has the second highest population of south London boroughs, so take that into consideration when reading these figures. However that will be of little respite to the people in the borough when they see how much the figures are increasing.

Croydon

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 455 - April 2016: 334; Gang offences: April 2017: 34 - April 2016: 40; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 105 - April 2016: 66

Croydon is the largest south London borough, but with that, these numbers are very high. Over 100 people under the age of 25 injured in knife attacks in the space of one month demonstrates why even London mayor Sadiq Khan has been speaking out about knife crime in the capital.

Sutton

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 114 - April 2016: 101; Gang offences n/a; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 23 - April 2016: 17

There's a fairly clear east-west London divide when it comes to young victims of violent crime. The further west you go, the less attacks you see, and the less of a noticeable rise apparent. The number of violent attacks against young people in Sutton is still rising though, even if it is by a comparatively lower percentage.

Merton

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 111 - April 2016: 100; Gang offences: April 2017: 10 - April 2016: 14; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 26 - April 2016: 30

Merton's figures have remained relatively stable over the past five years, with a slight increase since this time last year, mostly as part in natural fluctuations between the months. Compared to the near 50 per cent increases in some other London boroughs, no change is a relief.

Wandsworth

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 170 - April 2016: 183; Gang offences: April 2017: 33 - April 2016: 45; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 42 - April 2016: 46

Although there was a spate of stabbings in April in Wandsworth, including the fatal stabbing of 17-year-old 'Little Mo' Mahamad Hassan, the numbers for Wandsworth are one of the few that are on a noticeable downward trend.

Kingston

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 80 - April 2016: 66; Gang offences: n/a; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 24 - May 2016: 10

Kingston is one of the most peaceful boroughs with the lowest levels of youth crime, so none of these figures should be that alarming. That said, when the number of young people injured in knife crimes more than doubles in the space of a year, it's hard not to be worried about the overall trend of increased knife crime in London.

Richmond

Victims of serious youth violence: April 2017: 83 - April 2016: 99; Gang offences: n/a; Injuries in knife crime: April 2017: 15 - May 2016: 10

Figures are dropping, crime is low in general. While it's worth remembering the population in Richmond is much lower than that of Croydon or Bromley, it's still one of the safest boroughs in south London.

Great work at our hospital

A LOT of plaudits have often been given (deservedly so) to the work that goes on at Epsom District Hospital, but I would like to write a few words about the wonderful work that is carried on at the Old Cottage Hospital in Alexandra Road.

The hospital may be old building wise, but inside it is beautifully clean, spacey and airy. All the staff that I met and had dealings with when I went there recently for a cataract operation were friendly, helpful and kind, yet were very efficient too, from the surgeon who operated on me, down to the nurse who gave me a lovely hot cup of coffee and delicious biscuits after my operation. Also all parking is free, which is yet another bonus for this delightful little hospital. My thanks go to all concerned.

Political ads in paper consist of 'soundbites robotically delivered'

I'M complaining, not that political ads have appeared, but for other reasons.

First, because they are only ever from one, what May said people called "the nasty party" and second because the ad, consisting of soundbites robotically delivered, patronises voters by totally ignoring the parlous state of healthcare, education, the economy, housing, the police and our defence forces under the Tories.

And third because Newsquest's defence of them is so shameless.

How can the editor claim to be apolitical when such ads, at several thousand pounds a pop, are only affordable by the Tory party?

Especially when 12 police forces have passed files to the Crown Prosecution to be apoliti-cal Service over allegations that up to 20 Conservative MPs broke local spending limits at the 2015 general election.

And your claim to be even-handed based on receiving complaints from all parties is highly dubious, as you only ever show Tory ads.

Essentially that the Conservatives appear to believe they can buy power and are the party of the few not the many is also clear because, in the absence of volunteers to do it, they pay people to deliver their leaflets.

So a question their two Sutton candidates should answer is: are they paid the London Living Wage?

Fighting for rights of EU citizens

I WAS surprised to see a letter in last week's paper, purporting to be from independent legal professionals, but really from a number of local Lib Dem activists.

They claim that bringing the rights of EU citizens living in this country into UK law from EU law does not protect any rights for the future.

This is simply wrong. It protects the rights of EU citizens already living and working in the UK after we leave the EU, providing them with much needed certainty.

It means that at the moment we leave the EU, when EU law may cease to apply, the rights of EU citizens already living and working in this country will be protected as they will be in UK law, not just in EU law. It means that nothing will change for any EU citizen without the consent of Parliament.

Yes there is much more to be discussed, especially around any administrative procedures that may apply to EU citizens in the UK, and UK citizens in the EU.

However, I am fully confident that Stephen Hammond intends to fight for the rights of EU citizens already living and working in the UK, especially those living here in Wimbledon and Raynes Park.

Instead of scaremongering and trying to score political points using people's lives, they should be working constructively to reassure EU citizens who bring so much to our community.

Breastfeeding mums must not feel 'ostracised'

I COULDN'T believe my eyes, or ears, this week - as I witnessed a breastfeeding mum being told "please cover yourself up or I'll have to ask you to leave".

I really thought society had moved forward and such appalling discrimination towards such a natural act had been consigned to history.

Sadly, it seems this is not the case and the waitress, who I believe should be ashamed of her actions, felt it was perfectly reasonable to embarrass this poor mother in front of everyone.

In fact, I think mum had made every effort to be as discreet as possible, but even if she hadn't, nothing would have warranted this quite outrageous attack.

In my opinion any woman should feel completely at ease to breastfeed her baby whenever she wishes, wherever she is - no exceptions.

EDITOR'S

The days when gangs of breastfeeding mums felt the need to besiege restaurants and cafes which refused to allow them to openly feed their babies should be long gone - sadly it seems some people are still living in the past.

Since being so taken aback by this behaviour last Friday, I've had the chance to discuss the issue and I now realise this isn't a generational matter.

Speaking to my 80-year-old mum at the weekend, who incidentally chose to breastfeed all her children, she wholeheartedly agreed with me and feels any woman should be totally at ease to bare all and feed her child wherever she chooses.

But, when I shared my thoughts with a family friend, her 21-year-old daughter, who was busy getting ready for work, had such strong feelings on the subject she felt the need to share her views.

In her opinion everywhere should encourage breastfeeding mums and make them welcome. However, she felt they should be provided with a space where they can spend time alone with their baby away from "prying eyes".

She explained that whilst she believes no mother and child should ever be excluded for breastfeeding she feels the whole experience is so personal it should always be conducted in private. In fact, she went further and says that in her experience breastfeeding is such an intensely personal and "sensual" experience she is surprised any woman could possibly feel comfortable feeding in public.

Ultimately it's clearly a personal choice, but I still think no woman should ever feel ostracised for performing this most natural human function.

Nature Notes with Tony Drakeford

'Ne'r cast a clout till May is out'. So runs the old adage.

Sound advice perhaps but I don't know if it is telling us to refrain from shedding our thermals or overcoats until the month of May is over or until May (hawthorn) blossom is 'out' in bloom.

Whatever the answer May is certainly the most colourful month of the year and my favourite, living up to its title of 'Merrie month of May'.

Wild flowers and blossom are splendid this spring. Bluebells earn the vote for Britain's favourite flower but I love ox-eye daisies for their simplicity and beauty.

Known also as Marguerite, dog-daisy or moon daisy ox-eyes used not to flower until June but no doubt as a result of climate change we now can enjoy them from early May.

Motorway verges are already awash with them, not that we can appreciate the display when concentrating on driving.

The flowers are at their best when seen in drifts swaying gently in the breeze, often attracting butterflies and other insects, see picture.

The name daisy is a corruption of 'day's-eye' alluding to the golden centre like a small sun with dazzling white rays or petals radiating from it.

Many years ago ox-eye daisies were boiled and the extract used to supposedly cure a range of ailments.

Marquis of Granby has been extensively refurbished and started serving punters last week

Popular pub reopens for business

CRAIG RICHARD
craig.richard@london.newsquest.co.uk

A POPULAR Epsom pub reopened its doors last week after an extensive refurbishment.
The Marquis of Granby in West Street reopened with a wide range of new food, wine and beer on Friday, May 12 – nearly a month after it closed for renovation. Manager Fiona Rynn explained the pub's repainted red, green and gold colour scheme reflected the military commander Marquis of Granby's uniform. Garden furniture has been added to the front of the pub, and that if anything the pub now looked "more traditional", Ms Rynn added.

She said: "It's lovely to have reopened. A lot of our regulars were hoping we wouldn't modernise too much, but if anything it's now more traditional."
The pub will be celebrating its re-launch with complimentary drinks and canapes at a launch party on Thursday, May 18. The Marquis of Granby – like many across the country – is named for the marquis who commanded British infantry battalions at the Battle of Minden in 1759.

With visual impairments common among those with dementia, Specsavers is ensuring a trip to the opticians and audiologists is as comfortable as possible for them.

In the run up to Dementia Awareness Week (15-21 May), Specsavers employees nationwide are becoming Dementia Friends, an initiative run by the Alzheimer's Society. Every store now has at least one team member who is a Dementia Friend and understands the needs of customers with dementia a little more. The Specsavers Healthcare teams that carry out home visits are also becoming Dementia Friends.

Specsavers is also using Dementia Awareness Week to remind anyone over 55 to undergo regular hearing tests, as research suggests that people with untreated hearing loss are more likely to develop Alzheimer's. Hearing tests are free at Specsavers.

Dr Nigel Best, Specsavers clinical spokesperson, says: 'People with dementia may not be able to recognise or articulate the issues that many of us face when we begin to lose our sight or hearing – but the effects are the same. Being more aware of dementia is an incredibly positive development for our teams and our offering to customers.'

Those with dementia commonly experience problems with their sight and visual perception, causing them to misinterpret the world around them. Some sufferers can experience hallucinations. On top of that, research has revealed that almost half of dementia patients in care homes are wearing glasses with the wrong prescription, leading to increased isolation.

Laura Stallerbrass, store manager at Specsavers Forfar, has encouraged all her team to do Dementia Friends.

'We aim to provide a safe environment for all of our customers. I can definitely see a shift in attitudes to dementia which is lovely to experience.'

Experts in eyes and ears

At Specsavers, we're experts in taking care of your eyes and ears. What's more, if you can't come to see us in store unaccompanied, our qualified and experienced visiting opticians can provide an eyecare service in your home.

Transport secretary takes time out to open new laboratory

Time for reality check

CRAIG RICHARD

craig.richard@
london.newsquest.co.uk

TRANSPORT secretary Chris Grayling officially opened a new virtual reality laboratory offering young people a glimpse into what a future career in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) could hold.

Students and teachers from St Martin's Junior School were the first to try out Atkins' new STEM lab in the company's office in Woodcote Grove, Epsom last Friday. The lab uses virtual reality headsets, games, touch screens and 3D models to take virtual visitors to a 'construction site' and educate young people about what skills are needed, and the challenges that need to be considered when constructing a new office or building.

In one room, overlooking the construction site itself, young people can go on a virtual tour of the building, taking in the sights, sounds and smells of the development, as well as how it feels.

Visitors can also compete to build the office as quickly and efficiently as possible.

The other room features a 3D model of the new building and a looping video of interesting facts about the development, as well as information boards about the redevelopment project and the future of engineering.

Epsom and Ewell candidate Chris Grayling said: "Close links between local employees and schools are really important."

Cyclists urged to get in gear for big bike ride

HUNDREDS of cyclists are expected to pedal through Epsom Downs, Epsom Common, and Horton Country Park this weekend as part of annual round the borough bike ride.

Beginners and keen cyclists alike are invited to journey through about 20 miles of the some of the most attractive parts of Epsom and Ewell on Sunday, May 14.

Epsom and Ewell Borough Council launched the Round the Borough Bike in 2014, hoping to build on the legacy of the London Olympics in 2012 and stage 7 of the 2013 Tour of Britain kicking off in Epsom.

Last year more than 200 people took part in the free event, and the route is maintained throughout the year.

Round the Borough Bike starts and finishes at Horton Country Park with a staggered start of 9.30am for keen cyclists and 9.45am for more leisurely cyclists.

BELMONT HOUSE
NURSING HOME

Finding the right care

Becoming a resident at a care home represents a different chapter of life.

Moving to a care home is understandably a worry, but for many it can also be the start of a new lease of life. At Belmont House in Sutton, we are dedicated to providing a smooth transition into a home where care is a vocation and interaction with residents is paramount.

A new lease of life

We celebrate and encourage independence, working hard to ensure that each one of our residents lives a fulfilling life and maintains choice over the care and support they receive. We are also proud of our great reputation in the local community. Our dedicated and committed care team enhances people's lives. In many instances our residents' health improves significantly once they come to live under our roof.

Life at Belmont

At Belmont House, a desire to provide everyone we support with the opportunity to continue to live life to the full is at the heart of what we do. This means much more than just providing good care; it is about working with each resident to understand their life story to-date, as well as their dreams and aspirations for the future.

Here for you

At Belmont House we offer a full range of residential, nursing and dementia care including trial stays, short breaks and convalescent care, as well as long term care in your area.

Recent Review:

"I visited my old friend at Belmont House and was pleasantly surprised to find her happily in first class accommodation more which is more like a luxury hotel than a care home. So much thought and care have gone into the needs of all the residents (too many to list here) one needs to it for oneself. I don't know the it, I would love to find a place like that should the need ever arise. The staff, in particular, deserve every praise for their care and attention." Friend of Resident

'Financial pressures' sees two positions costing £200k scrapped

Cabinet posts are axed

craig.richard@london.newsquest.co.uk

FOUR "inappropriate" and "excessive" cabinet posts have been axed in one of Surrey County Council's first moves since a large majority of Conservative councillors were re-elected earlier this month.

County Hall last week scrapped cabinet associate posts for children, schools and families, the built environment, adult social care, wellbeing and independence, and community safety services, citing "financial pressures".

The cabinet associates were responsible for leading policy direction and working alongside the deputy leader of the council.

David Hodge, leader of Surrey County Council, decided to discontinue the roles as he unveiled his new cabinet after the county council elections earlier this month. He said the jobs, which have cost the taxpayer nearly £200,000 since they were introduced in 2013, were "inappropriate" in a time of austerity.

In March, it was revealed that frontline services face nearly £72m of cuts this year, with the adult social care, highways, health, and children, school and families budgets are to be slashed, as the council looked to offset £170million of sustained government cuts since 2010.

Cllr Hodge said last week: "Given the financial pressures the council is facing and the need to find more than £100million of savings this year I felt it was appropriate not to fill these posts at this current time."

Liberal Democrats leader Councillor Hazel Watson, who had repeatedly called for the posts to be scrapped, said the money saved should be spent on frontline services.

A question to the council in March revealed £192,820 had been spent on special responsibility allowances for the four posts since they were created – a figure Cllr Watson described as "excessive".

She said: "I am pleased that these posts have been scrapped but disappointed that it has taken several years for the Conservative-administration at County Hall to realise that these roles were a waste of money."

"At a time of tight financial constraints for the county council, it is vital that every penny is spent wisely and it was clearly not possible for the Leader of the Council to be able to justify the rationale for these posts any longer."

"The cost of the four cabinet associate posts was just over £50,000 in 2016/17, at a time when the Conservative-administration was cutting services, introducing fees for using the tip and raising council tax - no wonder only 39 per cent of Surrey residents agreed that the county council provided value for money."

The county council's most recent quarterly survey also revealed that 40 per cent were satisfied with services for older people, 22 per cent were satisfied with road maintenance, and 33 per cent were satisfied with services for people with disabilities.

ROOF COVERED IN MOSS?

SPOT THE DIFFERENCE!

with Clean A Roof tile treatment

...STOP THE ROT NOW!

MOSS & LICHEN A NEW MAINTENANCE HEADACHE

The enemy

Attacking 24 hours a day 7 days a week

Mosses and lichens have now become a major maintenance headache for homeowners throughout the UK and are a contributory factor in causing spalling and erosion of roof tiles. Like all plant life, they hold and attract moisture, storing it within the surface on which they are growing which leads to frost damage and spalling in clay tiles and eventual deterioration of concrete tiles. Combined with the fact that your roof is attacked every day by driving rain, frost, snow, blazing sun and wind which creates even further damage to your roof - for example, loose ridge caps, cracks in your pointing mortar to broken and slipping tiles, etc. - a roof in poor condition does not stand a chance! REMEMBER, ROOF PROBLEMS NEVER CORRECT THEMSELVES - THEY ONLY GET WORSE!

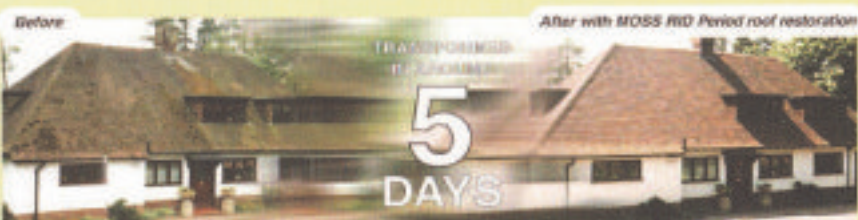

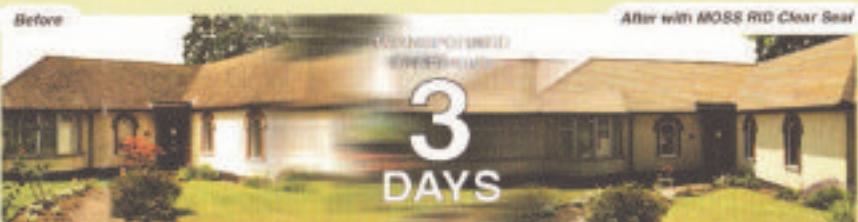

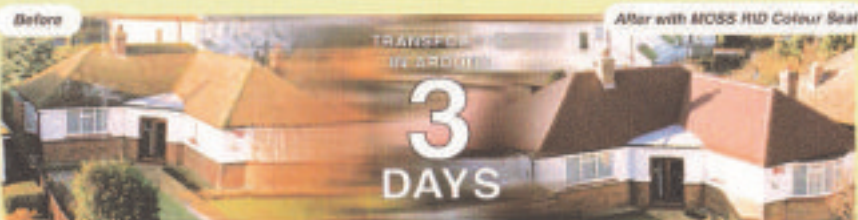

The defence

Defending 24 hours a day 7 days a week

- MOSS RID carry out a detailed inspection of your roof
- All broken and missing tiles are replaced
- The entire roof is then professionally hydro cleaned, removing all moss, lichen, dirt and pollutants
- MOSS RID then carry out a full repair to your roof including bedding and pointing of ridges, hips, gables, chimneys and gutters as required
- We then commence the application of the unique MOSS RID roof protection system
- Firstly we apply MOSS RID "BIO-BOND", a combined stabiliser/sealer designed to penetrate deep into the substrate in order to "bond" powdery surfaces. "BIO-BOND" will kill all spores within the tile surface. "BIO-BOND" WILL PROVIDE CONTINUOUS PROTECTION against the ingress of moisture and the re-growth of mosses and lichens for many years to come
- We then apply a further two coats of specially formulated MOSS RID roof tile coating to enhance the appearance of your property and adding even further protection to your roof - WE GUARANTEE IT!
- We also supply and fit PVC-U gutters, fascias and soffits if required.

*Note: All work is carried out by fully experienced professional tradesmen trained to high standards in the application of the Moss Rid system.

THE GIFT

PROG ROCK AT THE BOOM BOOM

Prog Rock fans are in for a treat at the Boom Boom Club in Sutton this Saturday night when the venue stages its second Prog Rock festival.

Featuring The Gift, I Am The Manic Whale and Habu, the occasion will give live music lovers a night to remember.

The Gift are regarded by many as underground masters of progressive rock.

In 2006 their first album Awake And Dreaming took the genre by storm with its heady mixture of '70s style and contemporary soundscape.

Originally signed to Cyclops Records, the band then joined the ever growing Bad Elephant Music [BEM] roster. Their long awaited second album Land of Shadows emerged last May.

It was another ambitious song suite packed with strong melodies, incisive lyrics and instrumental 'tours de force'.

The album takes the listener on a real musical journey with tracks like "The Comforting Cold" - an ambitious epic about the near death experience. As vocalist and principal songwriter Mike Morton says: "Don't come to us for songs about cars and girls." BEM is now about to re-release Awake And Dreaming to mark its 10th anniversary.

There is a progressive renaissance happening right now and The Gift, featuring Mike Morton (vocals), David Lloyd (guitar), Leroy James (guitar), Stefan Dickens (bass), Gabriele Baldacci (keyboards) and Neil Hayman (drums) are at its vanguard.

Second Prog Rock Festival, the Boom Boom Club, Gander Green Lane, Sutton, SM1 2EY, Saturday, May 20, doors 7pm. More details at feenstra.co.uk

What's on It's a BOLLY GOOD SHOW

Bring on the Bollywood comes to the Rose Theatre in Kingston next week promising a colourful and thought provoking production...

Bring on the Bollywood is a brand new Bollywood dance-theatre extravaganza, bringing a festival of colour and Bollywood magic in a major new nationwide tour which arrives at the Rose Theatre next week.

The story follows Dr Katrina Pawar who, having lived in London for 14 years, is summoned to her ancestral home, the shabby and un-chic Lakshman Villa, for her younger brother's wedding.

Sensing an opportunity to finally make a match for their last unmarried child during the festivities, Katrina's parents search for a potential suitor for their quick-witted and resolute daughter.

As the good-looking Bollywood film director Amit arrives at Lakshman Villa, along with his newly eligible British personal assistant Ronny, Katrina must navigate the true course of love between East and West.

Inspired by classic Indian cinema and the works of William Shakespeare, Bring On The Bollywood also revels in the shared dramatic heritage between the UK and India, as well as contemporary British Asian influences.

Director Samir Bhamra says: "Bollywood is widely perceived to be a low-brow art-form that requires no skill. Not only is it - in my experience - the hardest art form to crack, but it shares more than people realise with the classical Western arts.

"Bollywood would not exist if it were not for Shakespeare being presented in British India, and soon adapted into local languages for the wider communities. Both traditions teach us valuable lessons about people and life, and that's why they continue to connect so well."

The show's fiery heroine is played by newcomer Nisha Aaliya. Selected from hundreds of auditionees, Nisha was discovered in the unlikely of circumstances.

Samir said: "Andrew Lloyd Webber has rightly slammed the lack of diversity in musical theatre but, for me, the lack of opportunities for young British Asian performers goes much deeper.

"I discovered our perfect heroine, Nisha, by chance when she attended our auditions as a choreographic assistant. By urging her to audition herself, we have unearthed an exceptional acting talent for Bring On The Bollywood.

"However, like the majority of young South Asian performers, her only outlets for professional showcasing have been the Bollywood dance competitions. Without clearly defined pathways, formal training, and a diversity of roles, such talents can surely only rely on the chance few musicals that focus on Asian culture for a route into the West End."

Joining Nisha is Avita Jay (Kangna), whose many theatre credits include: Spare (New Diorama Theatre); Sunday Morning at the Centre of the World (Southwark Playhouse, Battersea Arts Centre); Rapunzel (Park Theatre) and Silent Sisters (Hawth Theatre).

Bring on the Bollywood, Rose Theatre, 24-26 High Street, Kingston, KT1 1HL May 25-28. For more details visit rosetheatrekingston.org.

MAKING WAVES

This year's Sundance Film Festival line-up is packed with delights with some highly anticipated features and critically acclaimed shorts, many of which have London links, writes Grainne Cuffe...

Described as a "haunting" and "evocative", A Ghost Story went down a treat at the festival in Utah and continues to impress critics.

It tells the story of a man, played by Casey Affleck, taken from life prematurely. He returns to his home as a white-sheeted ghost to reconnect with his grief-stricken wife, played by Rooney Mara.

Jeff Orlowski, the director and producer that brought us Chasing Ice, returns with another plea to humanity to see the damage done by climate change. Chasing Coral highlights the "coral bleaching" happening due to warming seas — a sign of mass coral death. It was the winner of this year's Audience Award for documentary in Utah and has been described as both "disturbing" and "moving".

Beatriz at Dinner is another one to watch, a social commentary comparing those who care for the many and those whose success relies on cutthroat deals and only caring about themselves.

Two very different people meet at a dinner party, polite chaos ensues.

Short films are in. London-focused pleasures:

Dear Mr. Shakespeare is a short directed by Londoner Shola Amoo and written by Phoebe Boswell and filmed around Peckham. A striking piece exploring Othello's racial politics and its link with exclusion in Britain today.

Directed by Rubika Shah and co-written by Ed Gibbs, White Riot: London is a short set in 1977 when immigration was dividing Britain. It explores what happens when a punk fanzine goes against the grain.

Fish Story, a short directed and written by Londoner Charlie Lyne is a fishy tail of intrigue about a search for the truth.

What happens when a robot meets a scarecrow and falls in love?

A short directed and co-written by Londoner Kibwe Tavaras tells us just that. The voice cast of Robot and Scarecrow includes Jack O'Connell, Holiday Grainger and Londoner Daniel Kaluuya.

London-based Rob Savage brings us Dawn of the Deaf. A small group of deaf people must survive when a strange noise wipes out the hearing population.

FILM REVIEW: ALIEN COVENANT (15)

By Mark Foker

Alien: Covenant is set in 2,104, 10-years after Dr Elizabeth Shaw (Noomi Rapace) stuffed the head of the humanoid android, David (Michael Fassbender) in her rucksack and hitched a ride to the space jockey's planet.

The Covenant in the title is a colony vessel, on a voyage to set up a new life with a 15-strong crew and 2,000 colonists in deep sleep. The ship has already been travelling through space for several years until the peace and quiet is abruptly disturbed by a distress signal resulting in the crew having to be woken up in a nauseated premature state by their guardian android Walter (also Michael Fassbender).

Due to a glitch in the system, the crew's Captain dies in his pod and second in command Oram, (Billy Crudup) a righteous man who would rather get his crew working on repairing the ship instead of taking time to mourn their dead colleague, steps up to steer the crew on the right path.

The deceased Captain (in a cameo role) was also the love interest of Daniels (Katherine Waterston, our new Ripley) who actually backs up Oram with colleague Tennessee (Comedy actor Danny McBride). I won't name the rest of the crew at this stage as they are all quite forgettable.

It is Tennessee in his straw cowboy hat who deciphers the scrambled audio signal as John Denver's 'Country Roads take me Home' (you didn't expect that!) and can pinpoint the nearby planet as having similar atmosphere to earth. And rather than spend more uncomfortable years in dodgy pods in space, they decide to send an exploratory team to the planet's surface to see how suitable it is to sustain human life.

However, by this stage, we the audience already know this is a bad idea and they should have continued their planned route instead of the lazy shortcut. Because 'There Will be Blood'.

It's not long before a few red shirt crew members get infected via a new type of plant seed dispersal method. Miniature white Xenomorph's grow from the human husk and attack the humans like velociraptors in the long grass. A mysterious hooded figure appears and disperses the creatures and leads the group to safety. The team's saviour is the android David who has been living on the planet for the last decade.

David is really the catalyst in this story and he introduces himself to the team but is he all what he seems? He is surprised to meet his doppelganger Walter and the pair exchange their cultural prowess in a strange homo erotic scene where Michael Fassbender has a tender moment with himself as both androids.

The two robots are polls apart in their reasons for being. Walter finds it his duty to serve and protect his human companions whereas David has evolved to think for himself and does not want to be a servant to mankind, who he despises. In fact, David is not too dissimilar to the Blade Runner android Roy Batty (Rutger Hauer).

I kind of like the idea of going back to the gritty origin storyline but when the action follows crew members running through the Mother ships corridors chasing after these ultimate killing machine creatures with heavy machine guns, it's all too familiar.

With a larger crew and larger body count, most of what should be scary moments are pre-signposted by someone's stupidity of not knowing the rules. Such as, don't go and check out that noise you heard behind that bush, all on your own.

With the original Alien (1979) movie there was always that claustrophobic feel with the civilian engineering crew not prepared to go to battle and you had already invested in these people to make you care. You also only had a parting glance of the creature which slowly built up the tension, as they did in Jaws (1975) and American Werewolf in London (1981).

Having said that. There are a few good action sequences in this film and Katherine Waterston and Danny McBride are the standout performances for me.

It's a shame that Billy Crudup seems to be playing more unlikeable characters these days, when he was so cool in Almost Famous and Watchmen.

Not sure where the Alien franchise goes from here, although there are many rumours about director Ridley Scott pre-tending Alien 3 didn't happen and thereby producing a sequel around Ripley, Corporal Hicks and Newt. OUT NOW.

The combined 'additional costs' of moving home, such as estate agent fees and conveyancing costs, have increased by 25 per cent since 2006 and now stand at an average of £9,472, according to new research.

Post Office Money's Cost of Buying & Moving study, compiled by Post Office Money and the Centre for Economics and Business Research (Cebr), found these costs increased from £7,590 in 2006 to £9,472 by the end of 2016, however these cost increases could have been significantly higher were it not for recent changes implemented by the Government.

The removal of the SDLT "slab" system - which saw all homeowners charged at a percentage of the price paid for their property, for example, resulted in the average stamp duty bill falling from £4,227 at the end of 2014 to £1,774 at the end of 2016.

However, forecasts indicate the additional costs of moving will hit £12,267 by the end of 2020 and would-be buyers will face an even greater challenge for the amount they need to set aside.

Despite the recent fall in costs, two-thirds (65 per cent) of prospective home buyers are still underestimating the amount they will need to set aside.

These expensive moving costs present a challenge for prospective home buyers and movers who also need to find £94,200 to pay for a deposit on the average home. While this has remained fairly consistent in recent years, over the last decade, the average deposit has increased by 36 per cent. Deposit costs also remain high for first-time buyers, who can expect to pay an average £50,136 on their deposit.

Breakdown of additional costs of moving, and how they have changed between 2006 and 2016 (individual percentages reflect the proportion of each cost in the overall cost of buying and moving)

One of the most significant moving costs to increase over the past 10 years is the fee charged by surveyors. This cost has jumped by 53 per cent since the end of 2006 (from £498 to £764 in 2016).

Those hoping to move in the South East have been one of the hardest hit by increases, with additional costs rising by 72 per cent in the last 10 years (from £8,809 in 2006 to £15,114 in 2016). But London remains the most expensive place to move home with an average cost of £26,673.

The additional costs of moving home remain the highest in London and residents of the capital are the most likely to underestimate the additional costs, with prospective buyers in the city budgeting £8,838, significantly less than the £26,673 they should expect to spend.

Commenting on the findings, Owen

COUNTING THE COST

Woodley, Managing Director at Post Office Money, said: "Forecasts indicate the cost of buying and moving will only continue to rise over the next five years, even with the impact of revised stamp duty rules introduced to reduce the impact on prospective buyers' wallets. With research indicating that 65 per cent of these buyers have underestimated how much they should budget for these costs, careful and considered budgeting is essential at a time when they are already likely to be financially stretched.

"We are aware of the barriers people can face when they are looking to purchase their first home or move further up the ladder. Planning ahead is vital and potential homebuyers should factor in these costs early on to avoid being faced with stressful, last-minute bills. Our continued research into housing affordability has helped to inform our own offering as a provider, having recently introduced a range of 95% LTV deals that are free with cashback offers. These are helpful for those with a smaller deposit."

Job opportunities opening up in supermarkets

Yes, supermarkets really are growing super again. New information from Kantar Worldpanel for the 12 weeks ending on April 23 this year shows the overall grocery market has grown by 3.7 per cent.

That's the fastest rate since September 2013 and worth almost £1billion in additional sales.

In fact, all 10 major retailers are showing growth for the first time in three and a half years.

Of course, this is great news for anyone looking to kick start their career in retail with the prospect of new job opportunities on the horizon.

But what does it feel like to be on the supermarket frontline?

We asked Shelley Patterson, a 20-year-old sales assistant working for a major UK supermarket chain.

What's it like working in this kind of retail arena?

"When I first started I was 18 and I found it a bit scary. The shop is massive and on a busy weekend it can feel like there are people everywhere. I found the trick is to stay calm and focus on what I'm supposed to be doing – stacking the shelves or operating the till at the checkout.

That way I can manage the 'rush hour madness' a lot easier."

Do you work regular hours?

"The rota system means I know in advance what hours I'll be working and so, yes, it's easy to plan ahead.

That said, we're a 24-hour store and there are different shift patterns, so you have to be willing to be flexible."

What are the best bits of your week?

"I really love my shifts when I'm working as a customer assistant. You get the freedom to move around the store and make sure shoppers know where different items.

"It's also a great way to meet customers and improve my people skills – my self-confidence has grown so much as a result!"

How do you see yourself progressing?

"Oh, definitely in a management position.

"The chances for promotion are great in a company like this.

"We have close contact every day with our managers, as well as the chance to go on courses to learn new skills.

"Yes, store manager: that's where I'll be!"

BACKGROUND: Try and picture a van-based compact people carrier. Bet you weren't imagining anything quite as nice as this. The current version of Citroën's much more civilised second generation Berlingo Multispace has in recent years been further distanced from the original MK1 model's basic commercial roots. With smart styling, strong equipment levels and the hi-tech option of efficient BlueHDi diesel engines and even all-electric power, this value-for-money five or seven-seater is now a vehicle that demands to be taken very seriously indeed.

DRIVING EXPERIENCE: Some cars aren't too precious about the lives they need. Take Citroën's classic post-war 2CV. You could drive it across a ploughed field, hose it clean, subject it to a fearful leathering, then pass it on like a family heirloom. It was uniquely French, uniquely Citroën and its modern-day successor was the first generation of this car, Citroën's Berlingo Multispace.

By the time this second generation version was launched in 2008, we'll over a million Multispace models were pounding European roads - but people were hanging on to them. To further develop sales, Citroën needed to bridge the gap a little between this Berlingo and more conventional small people carriers. Hence the emergence of this MK2 model as a more sophisticated thing, with underpinnings now based on a car, the French brand's C4 Picasso MPV, rather than a van. In recent times, the brand has improved it further, adding clever BlueHDi diesel technology for lower running costs, even more clever equipment and a smarter look. It all aims to create a very complete compact people carrier. The only one you'll ever need? Let's find out. DESIGN: You'll probably be very pleasantly surprised by how the Berlingo Multispace drives. The old bump, thump and reverberations that characterised earlier versions have well and truly gone. I know it's a bit of a cliché when discussing this sort of MPV but there is a lot of truth in describing this boxy Citroën as 'car-like'. For what is quite a tall, high vehicle, there's none of the tippy feeling that characterised the first generation version of this design, helped in no small part by beefier anti-roll bars.

And a much improved suspension set-up. Which in turn has made possible the kind of ride quality you'd like to expect from a Citroën: in other words absorbent and very well tuned for our terrible roads. It's an important thing to consider, for I reckon that aside from safety and practicality, ride quality needs to be one of your key criteria when making a decision on an MPV-style vehicle. Too firm and you'll never manage to get the kids off to sleep on a long journey at night: too soft and they'll get car sick. The Berlingo Multispace strikes a good balance because it's a little softer than you might expect in compression and rebound - in other words, over the bumps - but a little firmer than you'd think in roll - in other words, around the corners.

Engine-wise, you get to choose between a 1.6-litre VTi 95 petrol unit at the bottom end of the line-up, but from then on, it's diesel all the way, with Citroën's latest 1.6-litre BlueHDi powerplant offered in three states of tune, with either 75, 100 or 120bhp. To be frank, the petrol engine only really makes sense for low mileage owners. On longer trips, the extra torque you get from the diesel - 40% more even with the feeblest BlueHDi variant - really tells. Mind you, you don't have to have an engine. For frugally-focus urban-based families, the clever all-electric version could appeal.

COST: Let's face it, cash-strapped families don't want to spend too much on the car that'll move them about.

The good news with this Berlingo Multispace is that they don't have to. Prices range in the £13,500 to £18,500 bracket, around £5,000 less than you'd pay for a conventional five-seat MPV like Ford's C-MAX, Renault's Scenic or indeed the Citroën C4 Picasso that shares this model's underpinnings.

There are a few caveats here though. It's no good buying an entry-level Touch variant and expecting all of the flexibility that makes this model what it is. For things like the three individual rear seats and the seven-seater Family Pack (and I'd want both if I was a potential buyer), you've to spend at least £15,500 on a Feel-spec model - and even then, both of these features cost extra. At this level, most will want the BlueHDi 100 diesel engine, a unit which, for another £700, can come complete with Citroën's latest fuel-saving technology mated to a clever ETG6 automatic gearbox.

Harry Allen hit 59 as Sutton CC crushed Leatherhead last Saturday

Boys and Allen just too good for Leatherhead

Leatherhead 158-8 (50 overs)
Sutton 159-1 (31 overs)

CRICKET: Sutton cruised to a comfortable 9 wicket win and 20 points against Leatherhead at Cheam Road on Saturday maintaining their 100 per cent record and moving into top spot in the Travelbag Surrey Championship Division 1 with Chipstead & Coulsdon.

Winning the toss and electing to bat Leatherhead experienced a nightmare start losing two wickets to pacer Aman Shinwari in the first over of the match leaving them reeling at 1-2.

From this position a depleted Leatherhead side never recovered despite a breezy 3rd wicket stand of 82 between skipper Adam Dyson 40 and keeper Brewster Surridge 36.

Once again spin trio Grant Edmeades, Freddie Boys and Harry Allen strangled the middle order conceding just 79 runs in 30 overs of high quality spin bowling.

Shinwari then returned to wrap up the tail finishing with the impressive figures of 4-15 from 9 overs.

Earlier, veteran all rounder Sam Seadon had filled the boots of Surrey opening bowler Conor McKerr who was rested by the county, and finished with 2-43 from his 10 overs.

The innings closed on 158-8 from 50 overs.

In reply Sutton lost opener Chris Morris to hard working seamer Farrant for 13 but thereafter Sutton youth products Boys and Allen dominated the Leatherhead attack.

Boys finishing undefeated on a Surrey Championship career best score of 80 including 13 fours and Allen continuing his fine form of last week against Banstead was not out at the close with 59 including 10 fours.

Sutton reached the target of 159 with a massive 19 overs to spare to complete a comprehensive victory.

Next week Sutton travel to Camberley and expect to be at full strength with no injury or availability worries.

Sutton's second XI chased 247 to win by 4 wickets at Old Rutlishians with Wahid Ali 72, Jaimin Patel 64 and new signing from Ilford CC Lal 66 contributing with the bat. Earlier Connor Griffin and Fred Griffin had each taken 3 wickets.

The third's lost at home to Spencer whilst Sam Clarkson's 4th XI won an extraordinary encounter on an unpredictable surface at Sanderstead where after being dismissed for a paltry 46 they then bowled out Sanderstead for 41 to win by 5 runs.

Tadworth A.C.'s Simon Booth had a good run in the North Downs Way 50 mile trail race on Saturday, finishing 7th of 221 in 7 hours 38 minutes 32 seconds.

The course runs from Farnham in Surrey to Knockholt Pound, near Sevenoaks in Kent, taking in Ranmore Common, Box Hill and Reigate Hill with

Doswell raids rivals to sign three new players

REPORTER

WARREN GWILLYM

wgwillym@london.newsquest.co.uk

Sutton United have made three eye-catching signings as they prepare for their second season in the Vanarama National League.

United manager Paul Doswell has lured former Braintree and Borehamwood midfielder Kenny Davis to Gander Green Lane where he will be joined by ex-Dover Athletic duo Ross Lafayette and Moses Emmanuel.

Davis, who scored twice against Sutton in last season's FA Trophy third round replay for Borehamwood, spent six seasons at Braintree where he was integral to the club's rise from the Conference South to the brink of the Football League when they were beaten in the play-offs by Grimsby Town in 2016.

Lafayette and Emmanuel will be familiar faces to Sutton fans having played against the U's for Welling and Bromley respectively during successful promotion campaigns for those clubs.

Both players combined well at Dover last season where they proved to be a formidable attacking force.

Emmanuel grabbed a hat-trick at Gander Green Lane in November when the Kent club thrashed an under-strength Sutton side 6-0 just days before the U's hit the headlines with an FA Cup over League Two Cheltenham Town.

All three players have made an impression on Doswell with their performances against Sutton in recent seasons and the U's boss is delighted to have acquired three such highly sought after players.

He told the club's website: "We've analysed carefully how we need to improve the current squad, and a goal-scoring midfielder with the ability also to contribute assists was an area that we highlighted.

"Kenny is football intelligent and will fit into our dressing room ethic.

"Speaking to Danny Cowley [Lincoln City manager] about Kenny's time with him at Braintree confirmed all I needed to know, that we're getting a top player and person.

"Ross was excellent for Dover last season and was a great foil for Ricky Miller [league's leading scorer].

"He's a strong target man

Countdown to big clash

Tickets are selling fast for this summer's big game at Gander Green Lane where Chelsea Legends take on Glasgow Rangers Legends on Saturday, June 17.

The match will feature a whole host of players who have connections with either side such as Gordon Durie, Mark Falco, Derek Johnstone, Dave Beasant and Ray Wilkins.

The match trophy will be presented by London Marathon winner and Olympic gold medallist David Weir CBE. For details call 07376 255307 or email blueslegendsgames@sufc3g.co.uk who also contributes plenty of goals.

"He will provide the team with a different option and the thought of Max Biamou or Adam Coombes playing alongside him is exciting.

"Moses is someone I've admired greatly over the years, and even more so because he had the most annoying habit of scoring every time he played against us.

"He is versatile in that he can play as a second striker, or in a three up front, and we feel his pace and movement will add to our attack."

Schools make a splash at gala

On May 12, London Borough of Sutton held the Primary Swimming Gala at Westcroft Leisure Centre.

The event consisted of 25m freestyle, breaststroke, backstroke and fly races and freestyle and medley relays.

Year 4, 5 and 6 boys and girls from St Marys, Cheam Park Farm, Avenue Primary, St Cecilia's Catholic Primary, Stanley Park Juniors, St Dunstan's Primary, Westbourne Primary and Nonsuch Primary schools all competed to make their schools proud.

The winners of the Boys Borough Shield were Stanley Park Junior boys with 65 points, followed by St Dunstan's Primary boys with 56 points and Avenue Primary boys with 55 points.

The winners of the Girls Borough Shield were Avenue Primary girls with 66 points, followed by Stanley Park Junior girls with 61 points and Cheam Park Farm girls with 58 points.

The overall winners of the gala were Stanley Park Juniors with fantastic 126 points closely followed by second placed Avenue Primary 121 points and 3rd placed St Dunstan's Primary with 113 points.

Sutton and Cheam junior boys and girls attended first weekend of London Regional Age Group Championships at the London Aquatics Centre, Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park in London.

Twenty-five of our under 15 swimmers qualified for London Regional Championships this year.

This is a record number for the club in this age group.

For many of our young swimmers this was the first experience of swimming at the Olympic pool.

Many fantastic PBs were achieved as well as few medals, the winners were:

Filip Malov (12) won silver for 50m freestyle and bronze for 100m freestyle

Spencer Creamore (14) won gold for 50m freestyle and silver for 100m freestyle.

Booth shines for Tadworth with fine finish on Downs a total ascent of 5,600 feet.

Team mates Phil Stevens, 41st in 9:04:05, and Paul Taylor, 64th in 9:37:35, also completed the gruelling course.

Elsewhere, It was the return leg of the mob match between local clubs Sutton Runners and Collingwood AC. This time the match was held at Sutton Runners home Parkrun, Nonsuch Park.

Both clubs certainly did come out mob handed and Sutton Runners were on a mission to retain the leaders title that they had gained from the first leg at Roundshaw Downs Parkrun.

Sutton Runners' Neil Reissland, David Williams and Robert Lloyd Smith were the first three through in 2nd, 3rd and 5th places overall on 17.17, 17.20 and 17.30 respectively. First through for Collingwood AC was Robert Knight on 18.26, 11th overall and then Gordon Hennessy 18.38, 14th overall.

When the final results were added up Sutton Runners won with a total of 1477 points to Collingwood AC's 869. Many PBs were obtained at the race for both club members. Sutton Runners' Lionel Gunn 20.54 and Collingwood's Andrew McGovern came in on 20.08.

A great friendly local match that both clubs hope will continue next year.
